Gallano Takes Oath of Office

Mr. Andrew C. Gallano shown above with Governor Peabody, recently took his oath of office as Deputy Commissioner of Central Service. Mr. Gallano is the first official in this capacity. The position was recently created by the Legislature under the reorganization of the office of Administration and Finance. Gallano will head the division which encompasses three Bureaus, Bureau of Building Construction, Administrative Services and Superintendent of Buildings.

Senator Hammond's Solution To Route 91 Construction

A most serious problem is now presenting itself to a large portion of the population of the Hampden-Berkshire District. I would like, as the State Senator from this District, to express my thoughts on the proposed closing of the Memorial Bridge in Springfield for Rte. 91 construction.

Our personal sentiments notwithstanding, Springfield is the center of industry, commerce and industrial distribution for this

Western Massachusetts district and area. It seems to me that the complete closing of Memorial Bridge would be a case of Interstate progress succeeding at the cost of local commercial life and development. The businessmen of Springfield have invested far too much of their financial future in property development and urban renewal to be asked to run the risk of a recess in commerce. An alternative to closing Memorial Bridge must be sought and found.

I advance this possibility for consideration. Restrict traffic to two lanes, one in either direction, place police officers at either ends of the bridge to prevent traffic back-ups. Some of the traffic will, of necessity, have to be detoured, but that which will not, will more than compensate for the commercial activity that would be lost if the bridge were closed off completely.

During special occasions, such as the Eastern States Exposition, Home Show, Flower Show and Hockey Games, prior newspaper publicity as to alternate routes (Please Turn To Page 6)

Set Up McDowell Memorial Fund

A committee met to arrange acceptance of donations which will be made to memorialize and perpetuate the many kindnesses of Miss Mary McDowell, who will retire in June as principal of the Benjamin Phelps School. The committee thought that a suitable type of remembrance would be a fund to continue the generosity and thoughtfulness which has been an unknown part of Miss McDowell's 37 years at Phelps School.

Donations for the fund may be sent to the Mary McDowell Memorial Fund, Post Office Box 47 or the Agawam Pharmacy.

Committee members are: Rev. John P. Shannon, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Zenaty, Mrs. Doris Nolin, Mrs. Rita Moore, Mrs. Harry Egbert, Mrs. Elizabeth Pond, Mrs. Cecily LaBonte and Mrs. Cosette Brame.

During the discussion the fact developed that many of the citizens of Agawam were unaware of the many kindnesses carried on by Miss McDowell in addition to her official school functions. Therefore, it was felt that this memorial fund would be a means to continue these acts of kindness in Miss McDowell's name.

VETERANS OF THE REVOLUTION

By Edith LaFrancis

When the Massachusetts General Court in June, 1776, ordered 5,000 men to be raised in the colony, 754 were to come from the Connecticut Valley. The quota for West Springfield, (including Agawam) was 48, a larger number than required of any other town in the valley, one more than Northampton, four more than Springfield and 17 more than Westfield.

Previous to this, upon hearing the news of the battle of Lexington, two companies of Minute Men had been sent to Boston.

So swift was the pace of the Post Riders with the news, that on April 20th, Capt. Elihu Kent of Suffield started for Boston with 59 men and a provision wagon. Springfield had been busy for months collecting arms and supplies and drilling men. On April 20th and 21st, five companies started from Springfield; one under the command of Major Andrew Colton; a West Springfield Company under Captain Enoch Chapin, a second West Springfield contingent under Colton with Gideon Burt as First Lieutenant, and a Southwick company.

Horses, guns, blankets, etc. were purchased from whatever citizen happened to have them. Many people who fled the dangers in Boston were cared for here. In this area some of the ablest men were Tories and could not be drafted or otherwise relied upon to prosecute the war. Four descendants of the Pyncheon family then in Springfield were exceptions; all held public office and supported the colonists.

In 1777 two battalions from this county were ordered to Ticonderoga, among them several Agawam men. Enoch Cooper is on the list of officers of Massachusetts militia endorsed April 26, 1776. He was Lieutenant in command of a company in Colonel David Leonard's regiment, enlisted May 16, 1777 and discharged July 15, 1777, two months on expedition to Ticonderoga. He was also Lieutenant in Captain Preserved Leonard's Co., engaged July 28, 1779 and discharged Sept. 2, 1779, this mission being to New Haven.

Nathan Rowley was Captain of a company in Colonel John Mosely's Regiment of militia in 1776, also in 1777 and 1782, traveling distances of 100 miles on horseback.

William Allen enlisted July 9, 1777 as did Joseph and Stephen Bodurtha and Timothy Burbank.

Some 42 veterans of the Revolution are buried in Agawam. There are five Leonards in Federal Hill Cemetery and three in South Westfield Street. Samuel Flower was a Captain, Samuel Wolcott a Chaplain, Thaddeus Leonard a fifer and Timothy Horton a surgeon. Some of these 42 men enlisted for three years or the duration of the war and some for as little as eight days.

SOCIAL SECURITY

"Knowing when to stop social security checks can be as important as knowing when to start them", Daniel J. Murphy, Jr., social security district manager in Springfield, Mass., said today. "Whenever monthly benefits are being paid there are events which must be reported to social security. We depend on the people who get benefit checks to let us know when such events happen. If they don't, an overpayment can result. Under the law that money must be repaid."

Mr. Murphy said that the most frequent overpayment of benefit cases involve the retired beneficiary who returns to work but fails to notify the social security office; the widow or child beneficiary who marries; and the widow who gets monthly checks for herself and a child under 18 but fails to tell the social security office when the child leaves her care. He added that there are other cases, too, and that it is very important that anyone who gets social security checks knows just what events do affect their right to benefit payments.

Each person who claims social security benefits gets instructions on what events should be reported to the social security office, Mr. Murphy stated. The Social Security Administration regularly encloses reminder notices with checks that are mailed out. In spite of this, the social security office sometimes finds that a beneficiary has been overpaid because he didn't report events that stop or temporarily suspend benefits. "In those cases the person must pay back that money, and it is always hard to repay money already spent," he said.

Mr. Murphy urged that whenever a person is in doubt about the need to report a return to work, marriage, etc., that he check with the social security office. "We can tell you immediately, and perhaps save you unnecessary worry about it. The best way, though, is to be sure you know beforehand what events

Conflict of Trash and Interest

An Agawam distinction is to be a town with a dump entrance on its Main Street. In addition, Agawam had the distinction of being about the last town to do anything about the "Conflict of Interest" law, and then on a note of despair, appeal to the "state" for answers. An elected official of the town resigns an office and is appointed to two offices in return, with a substantial increase in pay from the town.

The former town dump became the property of the now chairman of the Democrat Town Committee and the town was forced out of the place.

The, then Republican controlled Board of Selectmen, hard pressed to find suitable means of trash disposal at a minimum cost to the townspeople, were harassed and harried at every step along the way toward an interior arrangement. Understandably the average homeowner doesn't care where the trash goes to. To others, a tidy little profit can be realized if it is handled in the right way. When the Bondi Island sight was in use, loud were the protests. The rats from the dump-site were a hazard to public health.

Being an island it was difficult for them to leave. Still the solicitude of several Agawam Democrats for their fellow men was such that appeals were made to State Health authorities who were persuaded into condemning the site. The selectmen were forced to look again for a dump-site.

There is a dump-site nearby in West Springfield, on the main land, and the rats can be seen scurrying across the road now and then as they go about their business. Too bad that our Agawam Democrat friends couldn't have continued their concern with public health. After all a dump is a dump.

After the town election last November the Board of Selectmen became Democrat controlled. The dump situation moved closer to its present status.

A corporation was established for the purpose of handling trash disposal. Several sites suitable for dumping were examined by the board of selectmen. One, a most likely site, which looked like it had a chance, nicely located on the outskirts, was turned down because a brook passed thru a part of the area and it was cited as possible source for spreading pollution.

In the end, the "corporation" won out with its proposed site. For a price they are now handling the disposal of the trash that the town picks up and delivers.

Recently the adjacent river level rose, as it does on occasions and the dump site was bathed by its waters. Quick were the denials to the charge that pollution of the waters was possible and that unsightly trash was afloat upon it. A letter from a suitable authority to substantiate their denials was produced. The question arises as to what extent the gentle brook on the outskirts of town would have been a "villain".

It has been widely quoted that Democrats have a way with politics and have the knack of making it pay. Thus, a year ago, an aspiring Democrat in town, was seeking office. Since the Democratic victory at the polls last November he has been Town Moderator now Town Prosecutor and also the legal counsel for Tobar, Inc., which has a $21,000 plus a year contract with Agawam to dispose trash at the Main Street site.

At a recent Republican Town Committee meeting the new "Conflict of Interest" law was explained by a State Legislator and a significant part of the law states that the town counsel will pass judgment on who is and who is not "in conflict" when requested to do so by the Board of Selectmen.

As it stands now, any immediate decisions have been swept "under the rug" by the appeal to the Attorney General's Office.

Speaking for the Republican Town Committee, Chairman Richard Brindle is pleased to note that the tax rate is only a dollar increase. This is a reflection of the aroused action on the part of those who telephoned their indignation when informed of the heavy proposed spending that could well have been at the annual town meeting.

SPORTSMEN'S CORNER

By Bill Chiba

"Sterling old buddy, I've got to catch a fish, it has been three days without even a strike both Hap and Roland have salmon in the ice locker." This was my wail to my guide, Sterling Mullin, while we trolled the North West River of the Miramichi in New Brunswick, Canada, this past week.

Fred Yankus, owner of the Island View Lodge at Sunny Corner, New Brunswick, Canada invited Roland Reed, Hap Fournier, and I to his lodge for a week of Black Salmon fishing. Not one of us had ever fished for Atlantic Salmon before, so we were unprepared for what turned out to be the most exciting fishing trip we were ever on. Fred's lodge is a sportsman's dream and was constructed to offer the utmost in comfort, convenience, comradeship, and yet privacy, if so desired. Each room is equipped with bathroom facilities, a shower, closets, dressers that are finished off in natural wood grain to match the walls and ceilings. There is a large dining and lounging area with a tremendous fire place decorated with mounted heads of deer, and a realistically stuffed duck and pheasant on the mantle. The fifty guest accommodation is under one roof, not spread out along the river bank in separate little one and two room buildings like other lodges in the area. The excellent meals are prepared by chef Irving Astle who is adept at the culinary art.

River Abnormal

When we arrived at the lodge Monday morning, the river had swollen to five feet above normal height caused by the warm weather, and the run-off of ice and snow north of Sunny Corner. The high water dampened the fishing prospects as the salmon is a very touchy and finicky fish. Most anything abnormal will upset him and he will sulk for days without feeding. This proved almost 100% true the first three days of our stay.

Fred assigned Delmont Foran to guide Hap, Albert Ward for Roland, and Sterling Mullin, son of the manager of the lodge, William Mullin, to this writer. The guides were superb, and I believe that no better can be found in the province of New Brunswick.

Shown above is this writer with two Atlantic Salmon, weighing eight and six pounds caught recently out of the Miramichi River.

Hap First

Hap and his guide were fishing the mouth of Sullivan Brook Monday afternoon when a salmon estimated by the guide to be in the vicinity of 10 to 12 pounds took Hap's fly. Hap set the hook and then came the explosion. The fish leaped at least six feet into the air and continued to leap right around the boat 'til he fouled up the line and broke free. Hap was amazed and thrilled over the antics of the fish and repeated the event many times in the next couple of days.

Roland Next

Roland and Albert were trolling near shore the next day when a seven pounder gobbled Roland's streamer. What a battle!! The acrobatic fish leaped at least a dozen times before being brought to the net. There certainly was a proud retired Police Chief in camp that evening, and a very exasperated writer, with a sore arm from casting the fly at least 500 times in two days.

Wednesday evening turned very cold and the water dropped a foot. By Thursday morning the water started to clear up and recede quite rapidly.

William Mullin, manager of the lodge was very concerned over my not catching a fish, so he volunteered to guide me in the afternoon. Bill is an ex-game warden and knows the river like a book. We journeyed up river about six miles to where the Little Sevogle River enters the North West Miramichi. Right off I started to catch brook trout on the Salmon flies. Bill was enthused and remarked that it was a good sign. The salmon would be hitting later on in the day... how right he was. I caught 11 trout before we started to move down stream.

Sight Bear

We had just dropped anchor at another hole in the river when we spotted a bear swimming the ice cold fast moving river. He was a large one. Bill informed me that he had been seen in the vicinity by several people recently.

Around four in the afternoon Bill and I anchored in the mouth of a Bogan (river cove) when Fred Yankus came by and held up a nice salmon for us to drool over. He had just taken it at the spot we were in a few minutes before we arrived. I hadn't landed a salmon yet, and I guess my face showed my feelings, for Bill soothingly remarked, "where there is one there is bound to be two, so throw your fly out into that swift water and strip the line way out." This I did and reeled in ever so slowly, which is the proper procedure, till the lure was up next to the boat. Suddenly there was a swirl and the fly disappeared — I set the hook — not dreaming what was on the receiving end. "Holy mackerel", a around the middle of July. The river is overflowing with them for the commercial nets are lifted for 15 days, and the fish start their spawn run. Hap and Roland are planning to return with their wives at that time.

Fabulous 5th Season

"It bursts with the vitality of Broadway know-how. Mixes sentiment and show-business razzle-dazzle into a flashy, eye-filling entertainment. Superior to this season's American-made efforts". These were the superlatives used by Broadway's toughest critic, Howard Taubman of the N.Y. Times, the morning after "Carnival" opened its long New York engagement.

Wally Beach, producer of the Storowton Music Fair, in association with Lee Guber, Frank Ford and Shelly Gross, has arranged for the same national production of "Carnival" to open the 1963 Summer season on June 10th at bargain admission prices which are the lowest in the United States.

The cast includes David Daniels as the crippled puppet-master 'Paul'; Mimi Turque as 'Lili', a role she played on Broadway; Don Potter, a Storowton favorite, as 'Jacquot'; Michael Davis as the evil magician 'Marco'; Jack Hollander, George Nestor, Larry Weeks, John J. Smith, Howard and Randall, and Marge Cameron as 'The Incomparable Rosalie'.

The Storowton Music Fair box-office is now open daily, Monday thru Saturdays, from 10 a.m. 'til 6 p.m.

Casino-In-The-Park Playhouse Schedule

Nine plays ranging from recent hits of the Broadway stage to great classics of nearly four centuries ago have been selected for the 1963 summer season at the Casino-in-the-Park Playhouse in Holyoke.

Robert T. Mathews and Nikos Psacharopoulos, new managers of the Mountain Park Playhouse, announced the season would open with "A Thurbur Carnival," which will run from June 28 through July 6. Following in order of performance are "Pygmalion," July 9-13; "J. B.," July 16-20, and "Period of Adjustment," July 23-27.

"Threepenny Opera," with performances beginning July 30 and running through Aug. 3, will be the season's fifth selection, followed by "A Far Country," Aug. 6-10.

The summer's seventh production, opening Aug. 13 and continuing through Aug. 17, will be either "A Man for All Seasons" or "The Devil's Advocate," depending upon the availability of the plays.

The season will close with "Fashion," Aug. 20-24, and "Romeo and Juliet," Aug. 27-31.

Performances are scheduled Tuesday through Saturday, with two shows Saturday at 5 and 9 p.m.

At Your Service

DAVID C. GALLANO
Director of Veterans Services

Servicemen with in-service waivers in force on their GI insurance should learn what effect these waivers have on payments to their survivors and may cancel the waivers if such action is indicated, William F. Connors, manager of the Veterans Administration Regional Office, Boston, said today.

In-service waivers have not been granted since January 1, 1967, when they were precluded by the Veterans Survivors Benefits act, Connors pointed out. Continuance of waivers already in existence was permitted.

Aware of that, many servicemen continued their in-service waivers, without understanding the changed status of their dependents as a result of the provisions of the act.

The act established a new system of compensation for death due to service, known as Dependency and Indemnity Compensation (DIC). The provisions of DIC are generally more generous than the Death Compensation rates previously in effect. However, the law precludes payment of DIC benefits to survivors of servicemen who die with GI insurance in force under in-service waiver.

Generally, servicemen with wives and/or children may provide better for their survivors by canceling their in-service waivers
